

Rebecca Sherratt

Rebecca Sherratt is an integral part of the editorial advisory panel at International Aquafeed magazine, and heavily invested and engaged with the aquaculture industry. Her various roles at International Aquafeed magazine include researching and writing features about all aspects of the aquaculture industry, alongside processing press releases from companies, and communicating with members of the industry, to keep up-to-date and report on the latest news in the industry.

She is also organising several aquaculture conferences at VIV Asia, Bangkok, including the Aqua Feed Extrusion Conference and the Aquatic Asia Conference. Miss Sherratt proves her investment in the aquaculture industry, by networking with various members of several leading industry figureheads, such as Biomin, Adisseo and Nutriad, regarding conferences and editorial material. Miss Sherratt has also been offered the role of moderator at the 3rd World Aquaculture & Marine Biology Congress, in Osaka, Japan.

Miss Sherratt regularly liaises with several key aquaculture organisations, including the IFFO, FAO and WAS, who International Aquafeed are especially close in media partnering with. She is especially interested in the environmentally-friendly aspects of aquaculture, alongside fish nutrition and health.

Her various strengths include her editorial skills, passion for the industry and her many contacts within the aquaculture society. Miss Sherratt regularly reports on events in International Aquafeed magazine and will be able to skilfully report on the event in both International Aquafeed magazine, online and in-print, as well as on social media, in press releases and regular newsletters. She also holds a MA in Gothic Literature and BA (Hons) in English Literature and Creative Writing.
